

Kaspersky 'virus free' gala evening

Kaspersky Lab, a leading developer of secure content and threat management solutions, together with their local partners, Avian Technologies the sole authorized distributor for Kaspersky AV products for Sri Lanka and the Maldives, announced the release of the 2012 versions of its home user products, namely Kaspersky AntiVirus 2012 and Kaspersky Internet Security 2012, at a gala event held at Galadari last Friday.

Speaking at the launch Avian Technologies Co-founder Director Ranil Francisco, said, "When Kaspersky was first commercially introduced to the market in 2007, our challenge was to encourage Sri Lankans to purchase original AV products. Today having conquered the AV industry in Sri Lanka, it is our primary goal to offer the latest technology at the most affordable price to suit the Sri Lankan market."

"We are very proud to launch our flagship Kaspersky retail product range version 2012 which combines the best of both worlds, where you experience the true features of Hybrid and Cloud protection". The all-new Kaspersky Internet Security 2012 and Kaspersky AntiVirus 2012 incorporate the most advanced and effective protection technologies: a sandbox for launching suspicious applications, a programme activity monitoring module, a script emulator, a cloud-based reputation database, a virtual keyboard, and many other features.

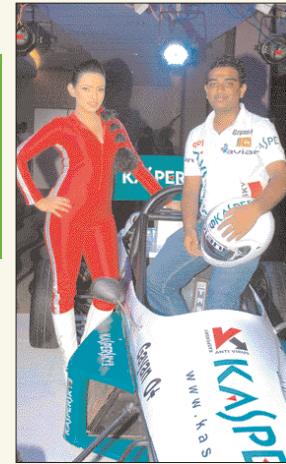

Present at the launch were Foreign Employment Promotion and Welfare Minister Dilan Perera and Ambassador

Some of the entertainment items that kept the crowd enthralled

Pictures by Sumanachandra Ariyawansa

A model with racing driver Gayan

Foreign Employment Promotion and Welfare Minister Dilan Perera receiving a Kaspersky Anti-Virus 2012

An award being presented

The Avian Technologies team